

Rewriting Halted On Commentary

NASHVILLE (BP) — Action toward the rewriting of Volume I of the Boardman Bible Commentary has been halted by the Southern Baptist Sunday School Board here.

In a special called meeting, the executive committee of the elected board passed a motion requesting James L. Sullivan, executive secretary of the board, to "instruct editorial personnel working with the Boardman Bible Commentary not to engage in any official discussions with any of the 11 writers of Volume

I until the meeting of the full elected board July 21-22."

The action was taken to allow the full board the opportunity to consider a valid interpretation of the motion about Vol. I of the Commentary passed at the southern Baptist Convention in St. Louis one week earlier.

"The motion of Vol. I passed at St. Louis," said Sullivan, "raises a question as to whether one writer or all the writers contributing to this volume are involved."

The St. Louis motion asked that "... the Sunday School Board be advised that the 1970 convention action regarding the rewriting of Volume I of the Boardman Commentary has not been followed and that the Sunday School Board obtain another writer and proceed with the commentary according to the vote of the 1970 convention in Denver."

Sullivan said that the full board in its July meeting, will be attempting to relate the motion's call for "another writer" to all factors related to this complete volume and to the other volume in the series.

Primary targets of those critical of the commentary have been chiefly certain interpretations in the treatment of Genesis.

The commentary on Genesis was written by G. Henton Davies, principal of Regent's Park College, Oxford, England.

Davies, who has planned to visit the United States in July, was to have visited the Sunday School Board the week before the elected board meeting to discuss the rewriting of the Genesis commentary.

He has accepted invitations for preaching engagements from several SBC churches.

W.G. Tanner Named Head Of O. B. U.

SHAWNEE — Dr. William G. Tanner, president of Mary Hardin-Baylor College in Belton, Texas, has been elected president of Oklahoma Baptist University by the school's board of trustees.

The 41-year-old educator - minister will become the school's 11th president. He succeeds Dr. Grady C. Cohen, who resigned to become president of New Orleans Seminary.

Dr. Tanner will assume his new duties Aug. 2. Although a native of Tulsa, he has spent most of his life in Texas. He received a BA degree with majors in English and religion from Baylor University.

He has the master of letters degree in administration and the doctor of education degree in administration and guidance from the University of Houston. In addition, he has the bachelor of divinity and doctor of theology degrees from Southwestern Seminary.

Dr. Tanner has been president of Mary Hardin-Baylor, a Baptist college with an enrollment of 800, since 1968. He is vice chairman of the board of directors of the Texas Foundation of Voluntarily Supported Colleges and Universities and vice president of the Texas Baptist College Presidents' Association.

Prior to becoming an educator-administrator, Dr. Tanner held pastorates at the First Church, Gulfport, Miss.; Broadway Church and West End Church, Houston, Tex.; Field Street Church, Cleburne, Tex.; and Wheelock Church, Wheelock, Tex.

Graham Speaks On Proposed Postal Rates

WASHINGTON, D. C. (RNS) — Evangelist Billy Graham, in written testimony submitted to the U. S. Postal Rate Commission here, criticized a U. S. Post Office move to impose an ultimate "750 per cent" increase in religious press minimum postal rates.

Speaking in behalf of his own Billy Graham Evangelistic Association, the Catholic Press Association, Associated Church Press and the Evangelical Press Association, he specifically challenged the contention by postal authorities that all classes of mail, even non-profit second-class, must pay their own way.

"This is a crutch used by the Post Office to tread its way through the maze of proposed second-class rates," the evangelist said. "But in truth, the fixing of compensatory rates is one of at least eight factors to be considered in arriving at a rate increase."

Mr. Graham was joined in his testimony by James A. Doyle, executive director of the Catholic Press Association, whose organizations recently filed responses to pre-hearing questions proposed by the Post

New Hospital Financing Approved

The Mississippi Baptist Convention Board, in a called meeting Tuesday, June 8, authorized the Mississippi Baptist Hospital to effect temporary and permanent financing for the construction and equipping of the proposed new 600 bed capacity hospital to be built diagonally across the street from its present facility on property now owned by the hospital.

Dr. W. Douglas Hudgins, executive secretary - treasurer of the Convention Board, said that the meeting of the Board had been requested by the hospital trustees.

Dr. Robert L. Hamblin, Tupelo, president of the Convention Board, presided over the meeting.

Zach T. Hederman, of Jackson, chairman of the trustees of the hospital, presented the request of the hospital to the board.

Mr. Hederman stated that the amount to be financed is $22,000,000 and that the hospital has had feasibility studies made by competent firms to determine the wisdom of the present course of action and their conclusions are that the project is sound.

Mr. Hederman reported that $1,855,985 had been pledged to date on the recent statewide campaign to raise $2,000,000.

He added that the trustees expect the $2,000,000 mark to be passed in the near future.

He further pointed out that plans now call for architectural drawings and the letting of contracts to be ready by the summer of 1972.

Construction of the new modern, complete 600 - bed facility would require two and one half to three years, he added.

Mr. Hederman made a progress report prior to the final vote of authorization, calling attention to the meeting with the Convention Board in 1970 when plans for the new hospital were presented and authority granted by the Convention Board for the hospital to appeal directly to the churches for funds in the $2,000,000 campaign.

The Convention Board is the State Convention ad interim and acts for the Convention between its annual session each November, Dr. Hudgins said.

Paul J. Pryor is administrator of the hospital, which is owned by the Mississippi Baptist Convention and operated by a board of trustees appointed by the Convention.

Mr. Hederman said later that the hospital will be a six-story-with-base-ment structure of half a million square feet of floor space — a facility representing a $25,000,000 investment.

It will be situated on a six - acre tract on the northwestern corner of the intersection of North State Street and Manship street — a site once occupied by Jackson Charity Hospital.

This site, which is currently being used as a parking lot, is diagonally across the street from the existing hospital, which will continue to be used as a patient - care facility.

Mississippi Baptist Hospital already is the largest voluntary (non tax-sup-

Several of the leaders present at the Convention Board meeting June 8 were, from left: Paul J. Pryor, Baptist Hospital administrator; Dr. W. Douglas Hudgins, executive secretary-treasurer; Zach Hederman, Jackson, chairman of hospital trustees; Pat McMullan, Sr., Jackson, hospital trustee; J. W. ## Compulsory Religion is Argued Before U.S. Court of Appeals

WASHINGTON (BP)—In a case before the U.S. Court of Appeals here an assistant - U.S. attorney argued that compulsory attendance at church or chapel services for men in the nation's military academies has "no entanglements whatsoever" with religion.

Continuing its defense in a higher court of requiring regular attendance at worship services as a part of the "officer's training package," the government's legal spokesman said that the Department of Defense had found "no other way" to accomplish this particular part of an officer's

Robert J. Higgins, assistant U. S. attorney, presented the Pentagon's case in a one-hour hearing before a three-judge Court of Appeals.

The case, Anderson v. Laird was brought before the U.S. Court of Appeals here by the American Civil Liberties Union (ACLU). In it six midshipmen at the U. S. Naval Academy and one West Point Cadet maintained that the military regulation is in conflict with First Amendment guarantees of freedom of religion.

In a three-day hearing last spring, top Pentagon officials testified before the U.S. District Court here that re-

Opinion Round-Up

Editorials On SBC Praise Spirit At St. Louis Meeting

By the Baptist Press

Editorials in nearly two-dozen weekly Baptist state newspapers praised the spirit of the messengers to the Southern Baptist Convention in St. Louis, with many of the editorials contrasting the attitudes at St. Louis to those displayed in Denver last year.

"There was none of the rowdiness that characterized so much of the business sessions at Denver," said the Arkansas Baptist Newsmagazine in an editorial evaluation. "Even those who pressed for action on the Broadman Commentary issue, the one and only hot item, though determined were, for the most part, Christian in their approach."

Last year, no less than 17 Baptist state papers criticized the attitudes of messengers to the Denver convention using such words as "un-Christian," "bitter," "hostile," "vitriolic," "arrogant," "unforgiving," and "militant."

This year, however, the editorials heaped praise upon the convention messengers for acting, as the Oregon-Washington editor said, "in the spirit of Christ."

"And nearly a dozen of the editorials gave much of the credit for the calm, peaceful and harmonious sessions to the convention's president, Carl E. Bates of Charlotte, N. C.

"The convention was not raucous," observed the Baptist New Mexican. "There were no temper flare-ups, that I saw, and the convention conducted itself with Christian dignity and serious purpose."

Several of the editorials pointed to one classic example during the convention when President Bates asked one messenger speaking from a floor mike to repeat what he had said, and asked him, "Are you still there?" The messenger misunderstood Bates and replied, "No I'm not mad."

Resolutions Approved At SBC

Digested

On The American Bible Society: Called upon Southern Baptists to make worthy contributions to the American Bible Society for scripture distribution and upon State Baptist conventions, associations, and churches to emphasize the need for a wider reading and sharing of the scriptures.

On Beverage Alcohol: Introduced by James Walker, Clarksdale, Miss. Opposed any use of alcohol as a beverage drink and urged the Congress of the United States to pass laws prohibiting the advertising of any kind of alcoholic beverage drink on television or radio and its distribution on airplanes and other public conveyances. The secretary was instructed to send a copy of the resolution to each of the members of Congress.

Prison Reform: Introduced by Raymond Lloyd, Ridgedale church, Chattanooga. Called upon Southern Baptists to follow the teaching of Jesus and care for those in prison by working to provide funding, education, ministries and such innovations as work-release programs, and expanded parole alternatives necessary to make prisons more honestly correctional. Urged Baptists in state conventions to work with community leaders, elected officials for offenders, and Christian treatment of offenders, and called upon prison officials to increase education and vocational training.

Abortion: Introduced by Larry Maddox, Missouri. In essence placed the convention in support of abortion under conditions such as rape, incest, clear evidence of severe fetal deformity, and carefully ascertained evidence of the likelihood of serious damage to the emotional, mental, and physical health of the mother.

Judicial Reform: Introduced by Phil Stricklin, Dallas, Texas. Commended efforts by the Chief Justice of the United States to develop more efficient courtroom administration and procedures, thus curtailing crimes committed by persons out on bail and awaiting trial for other offenses. The resolution also urged an objective reevaluation of present court structures and procedures by the American Bar Association and the state bar associations with a view to prompt any significant reform.

Public Education: Introduced by John McClanahan, Pine Bluff, Ark. In essence reaffirmation of commitment to the system of public education, support efforts to improve it, and to seek God's guidance in reflecting attitudes, actions, patience, and compassion which make a positive witness of Christian love to all people.

Public Funds and Religious Education: Reaffirmed the right of parents to send their children to non-public schools at their own expense. Petitioned the federal and state governments to honor the principal of religious liberty and the constitutional position of separation of church and state.

Music Directors Urged To Reach Youth Through Music

ST. LOUIS (BP) — The Southern Baptist Church Music Conference closed its national meeting here with a warning to Baptist church ministers of music against rejecting the pop-rock music of today's youth as it spills over into religious expression.

"If you reject the pop-rock music of the youth, then you reject the youth themselves," said Sidney Fox, program specialist for the Follet Educational Corp., in Thousand Oaks, Calif., during the conference's closing address.

is sweeping the country as a part of the so-called Jesus Movement.

"An old-time, foot-stomping, hand-clapping religious revival is happening, led by young zealots, with the liturgy of youth music," Fox said.

"They have found a new liturgy: the music of the pop-rock world whose composers create words and music that express their thoughts and heart-beat," he added.

"Must you wait until the youth have reached the point of no return before you try to elevate their spirits with the music that is relevant to them?" Fox asked.

Nigeria Reports Vigorous Growth

"Vigorous church growth" in the Owerri area of eastern Nigeria is reported by Southern Baptist missionaries Bob and Ruth Williams. They said that 2,500 persons have been baptized in the Owerri area since the 30-month-long civil war which ended in January 1970.

One new preaching station, often with a pasteurist, is started about every 15 days, they reported. Many churches less than three years old are attended by 200-400 people. A church was organized March 14 in Dumorji with 227 members; altogether 600 people were present.

In February 150 pastors and Women's Missionary Union members held a leadership conference in Ihiagwa, Owerri. "The meeting was characterized by optimism, enthusiasm and vigor—optimism because this area which was war-torn and the setting of so much human suffering seems to be making a remarkable and rapid recovery," said Williams.

Mississippi Marjean Patterson, fourth from right, state Woman's Missionary Union executive secretary, made a firsthand study of home missions during a recent tour of New Orleans, Houston, the Texas Valley, San Antonio, Presidio, El Paso, Tulsa, Kansas City and the Land Between the Lakes. Special emphasis was placed on mission vocations and work with other faiths in preparation for the study of these areas by churches during the next two years. The tour was made in four private aircraft. (HMB Photo)

Music Directors Urged To Reach Youth Through Music

He observed that the music liturgy of youth is nothing but an extension of what has been going on for centuries: "the need for man to find a new expression and communicate in new and changing times."

Throughout his presentation, Fox played recordings of pop-rock selections to illustrate his points. The selections from "Hair" and "Jesus Christ, Superstar," and other pop-rock recordings by such performers as the Beatles, Bob Dylan, Simon and Garfunkle, George Harrison, and others were in sharp contrast to the music presented earlier during the 2½ day jammed-packed meeting.

During the conference, the Baptist musicians heard premier performances of three new musical works, attended a composer's symposium and heard a half-dozen concerts by Baptist church choirs and musical groups. The conference honored both the retiring and the new secretaries of the Baptist Sunday School Board's church music department.

Elected president of the organization of Baptist church ministers of music was Carl Perry, of the First Baptist Church, Knoxville, Tenn.

Meeting at the First Baptist Church of St. Johns, a suburb of St. Louis, following the Southern Baptist Convention, the conference featured addresses by seven speakers.

Donald Orr, a music missionary to Colombia, said that music has opened doors in South America that no other method could accomplish, and Donald Allured of Lake Charles, La., minister of music for First United Methodist Church, told of the use of bell choirs in church music ministries.

In his president's address, Bob Burroughs, minister of music for First Baptist Church in Abilene, Tex., recalled impressions from two years as president of the conference. He discussed the lack of communication between local church staff and members of the churches, the new music revolution, and how Baptist musicians should "pull your heads out of the sand and get into the word as it marches by."

Samuel Adler, professor of composition of Eastman School of Music, Rochester, New York, led a composer's symposium. A selected portion of the Oklahoma Baptist University Choral performed seven of Adler's works during the symposium.

The anthem, "How Great," was written by William J. Reynolds, new secretary of the SBC Sunday School Board's church music department. It was performed by the William Jewell College Choir.

Reynolds was honored by the conference with a new award named in honor of the retiring secretary of the department. It was the first time the W. Hines Sims Award of Achievement was presented to a person cited for the most outstanding contribution to church music during the past year.

Two other vice-presidents for divisions of the conference were re-elected: Duane Barrett of the California Southern Baptist Convention, Fresno, in the denominational workers division; and James C. McKinney, of Southwestern Baptist Theological Seminary, Fort Worth, in the educational division.

Miss Tabor was again re-elected secretary-treasurer by the conference's executive council.

quired attendance at worship services helped future officers to understand "the impact of religion on various individuals."

In August of last year U.S. District Court Judge Howard F. Corcoran upheld the Pentagon's practice and agreed that the purpose of compulsory chapel for future military officers "is purely secular" and that "its primary effect is purely secular."

Arguing against the government's position, Warren K. Kaplan accused the Pentagon of developing a theory "riddled with logical flaws." Kaplan represented ACLU in its appeal to the higher court.

Kaplan described as a "contrivance" the Pentagon's testimony that the "sole purpose of compulsory attendance was to permit future officers to observe how other men worship... so that in future crises they would be able to understand religious needs."

Reading from catalogues and manuals governing the military schools, Kaplan cited a number of statements

Mr. And Mrs. Higgins To Join Clarke Faculty

Mr. and Mrs. Charles R. Higgins, former Newton residents, now in Honolulu, Hawaii, will join the Clarke College staff this summer. Mr. Higgins will be director of development and Mrs. Higgins will have charge of the college publicity.

Mr. Higgins is a graduate of Union University and of Golden Gate Seminary, and has done additional graduate work at the University of Hawaii.

At Newton, he formerly served as minister of music and youth at First Church; at First Church, Yazoo City, he was director of music and church activities; at University Avenue Church, Honolulu, he was education director. In 1970 he served as music instructor in Chaminade College, Honolulu.

Mr. Higgins has also served as instructor in the DeWitt Clinic, San Rafael, Calif., where he used programmed learning materials. As District Supervisor for Honolulu Community Action Program, he worked with three teaching centers.

Mrs. Higgins holds a B.A. degree from Chaminade College, Honolulu, with a major in English.

In September, 1970, she interrupted her Master of Arts program to accept the position of Women's Editor for KHVH Radio, Honolulu, producing ten radio programs weekly.

Mr. and Mrs. Higgins have one daughter, Jennifer, age fourteen.

ported) hospital in the state, with a total of over 400 beds.

Construction of the new 600-bed hospital scheduled for completion in 1975, will make Mississippi Baptist Hospital a major medical complex with a total of 1000 beds.

An area just north of the new hospital will be designed to accommodate approximately 100 automobiles for the hospital medical staff. Public parking areas are being planned.

Mr. Hederman gave the following additional details: The top four floors will be composed of four Y-shaped wings with a nursing station in the fork of each Y. Each Y-shaped wing will house 36 patients, or 144 patients on each floor.

The three bottom levels (first and second floor and basement) will be rectangular in shape and will be larger than the four patient floors.

The second floor will include the surgical suite, the radiology, 9.9 mplex, the radio-isotope rooms, the clinical laboratories, and a cardiovascular unit.

The first floor will include administrative offices, admitting office, lobby, accounting office, personnel office, nursing office, and other units.

Also on the first floor will be the emergency room, which will be accessible from North State Street; the inhalation-therapy unit, the exercise and hydrotherapy area and outpatient clinic.

The "basement" is actually at ground level on the west and north, due to the ground slant, providing surface access for employees and for service docks.

In the basement will be the dietary kitchen, maintenance engineering, materials, management, central processing, central supply, medical records, housekeeping, pharmacy, education, mail room and other units.

where, he said, the "real purpose... is to inculcate future officers with religious faith because of the government's belief that (to do so) they will develop better officers."

Even if the Pentagon's practice is for secular purposes, Kaplan contended, "it would still be unconstitutional because it would inhibit religion in general or enable religion."

The ACLU lawyer maintained that the Pentagon's stated purpose could best be served by some nonreligious means, such as a course in comparative religion, ethics classes or occasional representative visits to religious services.

When the government's spokesman began his presentation to the court, he was asked if the Pentagon rested its case solely on that stated earlier as a secular purpose to train better officers by helping them to understand how other men worship.

"This is the most important one," replied Assistant U. S. Attorney Higgins, "but we regard the effect test as important also."

state inherent in the First Amendment to the United States Constitution. It also requested the Baptist Joint Committee on Public Affairs to make known Southern Baptists' view on public funds for education in church-controlled schools to governments on all levels whenever it is appropriate to do so. Also expressed extreme displeasure in President Nixon's personal representative at the Vatican and that he be recalled.

On World Peace: Introduced by Clyde Lee Herring, Texas. Urged Christians to remember that in reference to war our primary responsibility is to work for a just peace. Commended President Nixon for his part in reducing the number of troops in Vietnam, and urged him to continue our American withdrawal in keeping with our desperate concern for the prisoners of war, and assured him of our prayers in the search for world peace.

On Voluntary Prayer: Introduced by Scott Tatum, Louisiana. Reaffirmed belief in voluntary prayer on the part of all people and urged the churches to teach their members the true nature of prayer and the role of the Holy Spirit in helping people to pray. Encouraged Southern Baptists to participate in prayer experiences that are voluntary and free from governmental or ecclesiastical authorities.

Public School Education: Introduced by John McClanahan, Arkansas. Reaffirmed the convention's commitment to our system of public school education as a means of raising the knowledge level of all children in this nation. Called upon Southern Baptists to support efforts to improve the quality of public education, thus enhancing the possibility of responsible freedom for each young person in America. Called for a seeking of God's guidance in the midst of social change that attitudes and actions might speed the progress of justice.

and that patience and compassion may make a positive witness of Christian love to all people in our day.

On Prejudice: Introduced by Elmo Scoggin, North Carolina. Urged Southern Baptists to explore appropriate ways in which the recognition of honest differences between Christians and non-Christians may be admitted so the claims of Christ can be promulgated without violating the dignity and respect of others. Also pointed ed out particularly one area of concern known as anti-Semitism, which some think erroneously is inherent in Christianity, and "which we disavow."

On Gratitude and Commendation: Expressed gratitude to God for His presence, to messengers who met in a spirit of reverence and responsiveness and participated in the business of the convention in the spirit of Christ, to local committees, and commended the Committee on Order of Business for efficient, effective and wise scheduling of the sessions. Also expressed gratitude to the press for their perceptive coverage and their spirit of cooperation, to the auditorium staff, policemen and other employed personnel of Kiel Auditorium and the city of St. Louis for friendly and willing helpfulness.—Adapted from Digest in Baptist & Reflector (Tenn.)

Graham Speaks On Postal Rates

Office, as representative of all four press groups.

Mr. Graham urged the postal commission to consider scaling down "mightily" the virtually confiscatory rates proposed by the postal service "in recognition of the social and religious contribution of the not-for-profit religious press."

He said the religious press represents an "in-elastic market," and added that he did not know how many religious publications will be forced to halt operations or be forced to merge because of the ultimate 100 per cent rate increase.

Observing that the commission is "not required" to make the non-profit press pay its own way, Mr. Graham said, however, that the commission "is empowered to recognize that the non-profit religious press pays its way in a far sounder and more meaningful method — by contributing to and shoring up the moral underpinnings of this country."

The evangelist said he wanted to assure the commission that the case for the non-profit religious press is not simply one of dollars and cents.

"It requires a far broader consideration of redeeming religious and social contributions," he stressed, "of said media and a determination of whether this media is to be harshly penalized for foregoing profit motivations in favor of the afore-said contributions."

He reiterated that the Post Office's absolute assertion that we must pay our own way... is simply untrue.

"With the establishment of a fair and equitable schedule of rates," he added, "avoiding a negative 'effect on the not-for-profit religious press, I believe we can continue to perform our ministry... to the benefit of all."

Mr. Doyle, representing more than 500 religious publications in the various associations, said that his association members alone would be tagged with a $1 million a year increase as a result of initial 40 per cent postal increases.

But, at the end of 10 years, he said average increases would be around 400 per cent, with some smaller publications receiving a 750 per cent hike in postal costs.

"He said the "shocking percentage piece surcharges tacked on to normal postal increases.

Urging special consideration of the non-profit religious press to offset "deterioration of a justly preferential position," he said "we believe the rate commission should direct that a non-profit second class rates should be established as a fixed percentages of second class rates — such as the traditional 50 per cent."

Mr. Doyle added that the CPA also believes the per-piece surcharge is "unwarranted and unfair," amounting to an "exorbitant additional collection of postage of a particular piece of mail."

Stating that some gradual increases are generally acceptable to the religious press, he urged the commission to eliminate the per-piece surcharge.

He added that the "special circumstances" of the religious press, in addition to those social benefits spelled out by Mr. Graham, should offset the commission's additional reason to continue the traditional special position

W. C. Fields - - Spotlighter Of Southern Baptists

By E. L. McDonald

In Arkansas

Baptist Newsmagazine

Field marshal of the greatest religious news coverage in America is Southern Baptists' W. C. Fields.

In his four-fold position of public relations secretary of the Executive Committee of SBC, press representative of SBC, editor of The Baptist Program, and director of the Baptist Press, Dr. Fields (he has the Th.D. degree from Southern Seminary, Louisville) has been responsible as no one else for making Southern Baptists the most spotlighted religious denomination in the world.

There are some who think this achievement something less than an unmixed blessing for a people who frequently "wash their dirty linen in public." But Fields and the SBC Executive Committee, which pays his salary, feel that Southern Baptists have nothing to hide from themselves or from anybody else.

For many years now, the news coverage of the annual sessions of the SBC, under W. C.'s direction, has constituted one of the most remarkable routines in the religious world. Top journalists from news services and newspapers of the nation who have come to cover the conventions have frequently been more enthralled by the Baptist Press operation than by the myriad of actions and activities it consistently covers to the last minute.

From time to time columnists have paid tribute to Fields and his associates for their phenomenal operation. But it remained for James Robison, staff writer of the St. Louis Globe Democrat, to be the first to do a full-scale feature article on the theme. The article appeared in the Globe Democrat of May 29-30, just ahead of the 114th annual meeting of the Southern Baptist Convention last week in St. Louis. Its six-column, streamer-head created some apprehension in inner Baptist circles: "The selling of the Baptists." But it turned out to be quite a different story from "The selling of the Pentagon."

Some of the highlights of Fields' symphonic communication production this year that fascinated Mr. Robison were:

1. Assemblage of a staff of 56 specialists (the most of them volunteers working "free gratis, for nothing") to cover various aspects of the convention;
2. Provision of free coffee, soft drinks and doughnuts to reporters, along with tables, typewriters, telephones, headgears tied in with the intercommunication system, and with closed-circuit TV, all in a large, restricted-area press room;

3. Extensive, on-the-spot, press photo service available to all reporters at cost ($2 per 8-by-10 inch glossy print);

4. Free distribution, in advance, to all major speeches, printed in full "to give the press an idea of what's upcoming";

5. A radio-TV news center for getting out daily news summaries on convention proceedings, via telephone "hotlines," to 500 radio stations all over the nation;

6. Provision in advance to newsmen of "News kits" of 125 pages each—"a newsmen's delight."

The philosophy back of such elaborate press service was expressed by Dr. Fields in interview with Mr. Robison:

"Southern Baptist have a primary responsibility to their congregations and the public at large to report what the largest Protestant group is doing or not doing and how it's maintaining its role on the religious scene."

There are many eyes of judging a man. In the quarter of a century I have known W. C. Fields I have viewed him from many angles and in widely varying circumstances. I have never known him to rate anything but A-plus. A ball of energy and congeniality, this six-foot, 190-pound native of Saline, La., is a rare combination of rich, native endowment and remarkable training and experience, all of it totally committed to serving the Lord and the Lord's people. At 48, Dr. Fields has been everywhere and seen everything (he has traveled in 60 countries) and done the equivalent of two or three lifetimes of things worthwhile.

He has a marvelous helpmate, in Rebecca Elizabeth Hagan, of Ft. Thomas, Ky., whom he married on June 22, 1946. He has a wonderful family, in Randall Hagan, Christy Alderson, and Rebecca Borden Fields. He has a superb staff headed by Jim Newton. And he has "the greatest denomination on earth" to serve.

As Jim Newton describes him: "He is a great guy. He can do anything he wants to do and do it well—even to playing the piano, self-taught."

Dr. Fields has served Baptists as song leader, educational director, pastor, state paper editor (Mississippi Baptist Record), all with distinction, but his achievements have frequently reached far beyond Baptist bounds. He has been national president of the Religious Public Relations Council, president of the Associated Church Press, and he is an accredited member of the Public Relations Society of America. He has been listed in Who's Who in America since 1964.

He is an airplane pilot, the author of two books, and he likes fishing, flying, and photography. So, rise and take a bow, Wilmer Clement Fields! We dub thee Doctor of Southern Baptist Communications—D.S.B.C.

Editorials on Convention Praise Spirit at St. Louis Meeting

The Illinois Baptist captioned its editorial with that quote, calling it "the best four-word speech at St. Louis." Observed the editor: "It illustrated that Baptists can disagree without getting angry at each other."

Searching for adjectives to describe the convention, the editors used such descriptive phrases as "peaceful," "harmonious," "calm," "cool," "routine," "good but not perfect," "unique — there's not another like it," "wholesome," "conservative," and "monotonous."

The Baptist Standard of Texas characterized the convention with the word "suppressed," observing that "the messengers allowed themselves to be suppressed in their quest for peace."

Both the Alabama Baptist and the Christian Index of Georgia said editorially that the lack of conflict and the spirit of the St. Louis meeting reflected "a growing maturity" on the part of Southern Baptists.

Almost all of the weekly state papers commented on the vote of the convention (2,672 to 2,280) to ask the SBC Sunday School Board to "obtain another writer" to rewrite the Broadman Bible Commentary volume on Genesis and Exodus banned by the convention last year.

In an interpretation of the significance of that action, the Mississippi Baptist Record observed that "what is being said is far deeper than mere discontent with a commentary," and that "the messengers were speaking on a much larger issue."

"Southern Baptists are saying that they are determined to stay with the Bible believing conservatism which has characterized the convention since its beginning, and they are not willing to move toward a more liberal position," the Mississippi editor said.

"Changing one of the writers in Volume I of the Broadman Bible Commentary is not going to make it a conservative commentary which will please most Southern Baptists, since there are other sections and other volumes which are just as objectionable," said the Mississippi editorial. "Neither will it bring solution to the real issue troubling us."

The editors of the Virginia and District of Columbia papers, however, took a different view.

"The loser in this whole episode is . . . the people who are so unsure of their own faith and whose understanding of the Bible is so shallow that they can't read another view different from theirs without feeling threatened," said the Capital Baptist.

The Virginia Religious Herald called the commentary action "disturbing," and observed that "dropping this pebble in the denominational waters could result in ever-widening ripples, affecting many, if not all, boards, institutions and commissions" (of the SBC).

The Religious Herald cited the diversity within the SBC and added that such diversity calls for mutual respect and acceptance of differing points of view in the denomination. The action raised several difficult questions which Baptists must face in the future, the editorial said.

Both the Maryland and Louisiana papers said editorially that they did not believe Southern Baptists needed a Bible commentary anyway, and that any attempt by a Baptist publishing house to interpret the scriptures in a scholarly fashion was bound to cause "a stirring in the nest."

The North Carolina Biblical Recorder observed that the "Broadman Commentary is really not worth all the division and misunderstanding it has caused," and that "this controversy will be resolved eventually just as others have in the past." The editor added that "there are still some ripples of discontent, but we do not view these as serious threats to the unity and progress of Southern Baptists."

Commenting on the emphasis of peace and harmony at the meeting, the Texas Baptist Standard wrote that the determination for harmony was so intense on the first day of the convention that the Sunday School Board possibly could have on that first day got an endorsement for its plan to have the original authors revise the commentary. "On this first day the determination for harmony would have been made by a vote other than sprinkling as a mode of baptism," the editor quipped.

"The desire for harmony did produce one action that is filled with unfortunate possibilities," said the Kentucky Western Recorder. "Based on unprecedented interpretation of Bylaw 16 by convention parliamentarian James Bullman, President Bates ruled that any motion affecting an SBC agency or institution . . . not printed in the report of that institution must be referred to the SBC Executive Committee."

The Indiana Baptist devoted its lead editorial to the interpretation of this action. "The purpose of the bylaw, the editorial observed, is to protect the messengers from hasty motions by the agencies, but the new interpretation reverses this to protect the agencies from motions by the messengers. "If we ever get to the place we do not trust this (democratic) process and the messengers themselves, we have ceased to be Baptists," said the Indiana editor. "The delay in considering this basic issue (bylaw 16 interpretation) meant that this year's SBC was devoid of any business initiated by the messengers. In this respect it was not a Baptist meeting."

The Ohio Baptist Messenger called the bylaw interpretation "a gag rule," and observed that the St. Louis convention "may go down as one of the most 'Presbyterian' meetings Baptists ever had."

Disagree With Parliamentarianism None of the editorials in the Baptist state papers agreed with the parliamentarian's interpretation of the bylaw. The Arkansas Baptist News-magazine said that the interpretation put the SBC in the "bizarre position of having refused itself the privilege of conducting its own affairs, and in effect, placing the Executive Committee over the Convention."

The Baptist paper editors, however, were not critical of the convention president for the ruling. More than a dozen of the editorials praised Bates as a president, and his "calm, low-key," "fair," "courteous," and "masterful" job of presiding.

Bates "brought a new dimension of understanding to the presidency," said the North Carolina Biblical Recorder. "He is God's man for the hour for Southern Baptists," chimed the Georgia Christian Index.

"There has not been a better presiding officer nor do we recall a better president," added the Texas Baptist Standard.

The editorials had no praise, however, and some criticism, for the selection of James Bullman of North Carolina as parliamentarian. The Texas Baptist Standard decried Bullman's appointment as "only mistake," and credited Bullman "for ing" on bylaw 16.

The Maryland Baptist put it in stronger words. "Dr. Bates presided under great pressure from a parliamentarian who apparently wanted to run the convention and thought he could and should in his role."

"If Mr. Bullman's ruling had prevailed at Denver, there could not have been one word of discussion about the Sunday School Board or the Christian Life Commission," continued the Maryland editorial. "Messengers who felt as strongly as some did at Denver would have held a public burning of Robert's Rules of Order and the Convention's bylaws with Mr. Bullman tied to a stake in the center of the fire!"

"We have always believed a parliamentarian was a resource person with recognized expertise in the field, but apparently Mr. Bullman felt he had a mandate to tell President Bates every move he could make. He popped up and down, paced the stage, counseled messengers on procedures and even talked to Dr. Bates while the president was addressing the body in his presiding," the editorial said.

"Mr. Bullman hasn't been to a convention since 1959, the year he insists he was bodily thrown out," the Maryland Baptist said. "It will probably be easier for the convention and Mr. Bullman if he doesn't show up again at the SBC annual meeting for the next 12 years."

The Capital Baptist of District of Columbia added the parliamentarian "did more to bottle up the convention actions than he did to keep it moving." The editor then made four suggestions for improving the convention next year.

The editorial suggested: "(1) get another parliamentarian; (2) eliminate floor mikes and make everyone come to the platform, (3) make sure whoever plans the program is aware of previous convention actions and insists on reports where it is necessary; and (4) set up some better way of dealing with resolutions than the last-minute way we draft them now."

A half-dozen Baptist papers commented on the significance of the resolutions adopted in St. Louis. The Louisiana Baptist Message called them "some of the strongest resolutions in the history of the convention."

The Georgia Christian Index observed that the resolutions, "dealing with such vital issues as abortion, penal reform, judicial overhaul, etc., showed in a dramatic new way that Southern Baptists are steadily becoming more and more concerned and involved with the workaday world where the gut issues of our times are so crucial."

The California Southern Baptists added that "there was no serious opposition to taking some pretty strong stands on some subjects that would not have stood a ghost of a chance of passing a few years ago."

Students Praised About eight of the papers praised a presentation made by Baptist students, with the Michigan Baptist Advocate calling the presentation "without a doubt one of the highlights of the convention."

Some papers called the student presentation the most inspirational moment of the convention. One paper said there were not many "high hours" of an emphasis on reaching the cities of the world, the commissioning of 30 missionaries, and the president's address and annual sermon as the high points of the convention.

Several of the editorials said the convention was too short to do its business effectively, and the Mississippi and California papers said the denomination's agencies were hampered by not being able to bring full complete reports to the convention. The North Carolina Biblical Recorder countered, however, that the messengers liked the fewer speeches, the time-saving reports from agencies and the shorter sessions.

Asking, "Where do we go from here," the Mississippi Word and

Way urged all Baptists including the boards, agencies and pastors, to "proceed to major on majors. We need to unite in a spirit of deep humility, relying upon the power of the Holy Spirit to reverse our downward trends."

The Illinois Baptist cautioned future Conventions against "becoming so wrapped up in internal affairs that they are unaware of what is happening in the rest of the world. As an example, the editorial pointed to the need for penal reforms as the county jail located just across the street from the meeting hall for the convention."

The Louisiana Baptist Message concluded by looking to the convention next year in Philadelphia, "where 'hangs the liberty bell.'" The editor observed that "the crack in the bell is real, as is the crack in Southern Baptist fellowship. 'Who knows,' the editorial asked, 'there could be a rebirth of liberty (soul liberty in Philadelphia). Soul liberty has always been a hallmark among Baptists. The day it dies, Southern Baptists will become passe.'"

Church Insurance Guide Updated

NEW YORK, May 24 — A revised edition of "A Guide to Property & Liability Insurance on Churches" has just been published by the Insurance Information Institute.

The handbook, produced for the use of the clergy and laymen who are responsible for the management of churches and church properties, is designed as a guide to a complete church insurance program and to assist governing bodies of churches in their maintenance and safety programs. Features include descriptions of property and liability insurance coverages and "package plans," loss prevention tips and an inspection checklist.

"The possibility of insurance coverages being inadequate as a result of rising construction costs, increasing property values and other factors makes frequent reviews of insurance requirements a virtual necessity for the prudent church management," the Institute notes in the Foreword.

Single copies are available without charge from the Insurance Information Institute, 110 William Street, New York, N. Y. 10038. In quantity, the Guide may be obtained from the Institute at the rate of 60 cents a copy.

Death Claims

Dr. John C. Butler Of Blue Mountain

Dr. John C. Butler, age 41, chairman of the Division of Fine Arts, Blue Mountain College, died early Saturday morning, June 12, at his home in New Albany, after suffering an apparent heart attack.

Dr. Butler has been on the faculty of Blue Mountain College since September of 1969, as successor to the late Dr. Brooks Haynes.

Dr. Butler taught courses in musical theory and composition.

Graveside funeral services were held on Monday, June 14, at 3:30 p.m. in Magnolia Cemetery of Meridian.

Dr. Butler held a Bachelor of Music degree from Louisiana State University; the Master of Music and the Doctor of Musical Arts degrees from Eastman School of Music, Rochester, New York.

He came to Blue Mountain College from the University of Miami, Florida, where he held the position of chairman of the Division of Theory and Composition.

Survivors include his wife, Mrs. Nina Butler of New Albany; a sister, Mrs. Amos Rigdon; and an aunt and Mrs. John McInnis of Meridian.

Dr. Butler was a native of Meridian. He had served as instructor of Theory Composition and Music History at Loyola University, New Orleans, La., and as instructor in the same field of service at Eastman School of Music. He had served as chairman of the Division of Theory Composition and as Graduate Advisor for that department, at Sam Houston State College, Huntsville, Texas. In 1967, he joined the faculty of the University of Miami, Florida, and came to Blue Mountain from there.

During his service at the University of Miami, Florida, Dr. Butler was graduate instructor to students from their freshman year through the Ph.D.

Just prior to his homegoing he had completed a special original composition to be used by Blue Mountain College students as a surprise to the college.

Mrs. Butler has planned to preserve the composition and will present it to Blue Mountain College later.

Dr. Butler was known at Blue Mountain College as executive chairman of the Division of Fine Arts, a gentleman endowed with a true Christian spirit, and a keen sense of humor, a continuous manner of encouragement to his students, fellow associates, and his local friends and his special expressed appreciation to everybody with whom he came in contact.

In appreciation of the life and services of Dr. John Butler, Blue Mountain College officials authorized the making of phone calls to music major students, most of whom had just graduated or had just left the campus a few days ago. Many of them have responded with memorials.

Those who attended the graveside memorial services from the college officials included Dr. E. Harold Fisher, president; D. H. Guyton, business manager; W. N. Washburn, dean of the college; Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Robinson; Mr. and Mrs. Edward Ludlow of the music faculty; and Dr. and Mrs. James L. Travis of the Bible and Library staff, and Miss Patty Callahan, a music student of Dr. Butler, who now is serving as secretary to the Bible department.

SEVEN HONORS GO TO ONE SENIOR — Dr. Harold Fisher, left, President, Blue Mountain College, and Rev. Roy Cullum, Secretary of Evangelism, Mississippi Baptist Convention Board, extend congratulations to Shirley Mohundro. (Mr. Cullum was in Blue Mountain to preach the baccalaureate sermon.) In the history of Blue Mountain College, this is the first senior to receive seven awards. She is a member of the Phi Kappa Phi Honor Society, and a member of the Beta Beta Beta Honor Society. On Awards Day she received the R. W. Griffith History Award, and the Joyce Elaine Campbell Memorial Award for being chosen by members of faculty and staff as student who best exemplified the qualities of Christian integrity, unselfish understanding of others, and sincere love for BMC. She received the Florence Connally Tyler and Mary Lewis Walters Award and the Nettle Courtney Paris Award for being chosen by the student body as one most naturally exemplifying the fruit of Christian spirit as depicted in Galatians 5:22-23; and for being selected as student who in judgment of the faculty best typified the spirit and educational ideals of Blue Mountain College. On the same day she received a certificate showing that she had been chosen for listing in "Who's Who Among Students in American Universities and Colleges." In April she was appointed by the Foreign Mission Board for two years' service as a missionary journeyman in Kenya, Africa. After orientation at Ridgecrest, she will leave for Kenya in August.

Raising scholarship funds for Christian education for young ministers and dedicated young women is the primary purpose of the organization.

A Tribute To Christian Fathers

By Anne Washburn McWilliams

I wanted to write a tribute to all the great men who have been and are Christian fathers. This short article is an attempt to express gratitude and honor to all of them. It is an inadequate attempt. Yet I hope that these memories of my own will help to reawaken in the mind of you, the reader, the many wonderful characteristics of your own father, and that this week and next Sunday, and, in fact, every day, you will remember to "Honor your father... that thy days may be long..."

I really don't know very much about other fathers, but I do know about my own. And with a giant-sized portion of love, I dedicate this article to my father, a Baptist deacon.

In all my life I cannot remember a time, even when I was a teen-ager, that I was really angry with him. Though I am sure I have many times merited his disapproval, he has never treated me other than with fairness and kindness and love. I can remember his whipping me with a peach-tree switch when I was very small—I can't remember why he whipped me, but most likely for disobedience or stubbornness! That peachtree switch never did hurt me as much as the times, when I was older, that he would look at me with disappointment because I had betrayed his trust in me.

He is an Alabama farmer, now retired. He loves growing things—trees and flowers, and I should think has planted almost as many as did Johnny Appleseed. One of my favorite chores when I was eight or ten was taking Daddy a drink of water at mid-morning when he was plowing in the spring of the year. My mother would draw a bucketful from the well, and fill a pint jar, or some times a quart. I never ceased to marvel at how thirsty he would be, and how he could open the jar, turn it up and drink all the water in just a few swallows! A drop or two would trickle down his chin sometimes, and he would stop and grin at me, chat a minute, and then go on with his plowing. I would try to follow his footsteps and jump barefooted in the soft, moist dirt from one of his tracks to the next. If I could say I'd followed his footsteps in patterning my life, I could say I'd done well, for he was following other footsteps ahead of him—those of the Master who had given him Living Water.

I shall never forget the afternoon, in the solemn stillness of a country church, when he was ordained as deacon. It thrilled me to see the pastor and other deacons file by in the ceremony, "laying on of hands," silently promising their Christian fellowship and love and prayerful support as he began his new task. I believe that he has lived up to the qualifications for deacons as outlined by Paul in I Timothy.

"Holding the mystery of the faith in a pure conscience"—Now 68, he has been a member of one church all his life, since he was baptized as a young boy. He has never shown other than sincere love and loyalty to that church, and he has served it in many ways—as Sunday school superintendent, teacher of a young people's class and then of a men's Bible class for many years, as chairman of deacons, chairman of the Pulpit Committee time after time. He was church clerk for 12 or 15 years, and did his job well, taking pride in keeping the Minutes accurately. Almost every year he would attend the annual association. He is a strong believer in missions, and encourages my mother constantly in her Woman's Missionary Union tasks. I always knew that to him church was important, because we always went, from the earliest I can remember. We didn't have a car until I was about thirteen, and we lived five or six miles from the church, but we went, one way or the other. And he has rarely missed a Sunday, all his life, until the past two or three years, because of failing health. He is a man of prayer and of Bible study.

One thing he could never do was sing in the choir! I inherited his inability to carry a tune, and he and I have often teasingly said that we hope the Lord won't ask us to sing in heaven!

"Not double-tongued"—He hates anything even smacking of two-facedness or hypocrisy. This is one thing that can make him really angry. He despises sham and dishonesty, and I have seen him stand for the principle of right many times even when it cost him hours of agony and deep personal hurt from those who criticized him for taking that stand. He speaks frankly—sometimes at the expense of tact—but I admire him for the courage to stand up for his beliefs.

He has always been interested in the affairs of his state and community and nation, and loves a good political argument. He never misses an opportunity to vote. (And neither does his father, who is 91!)

"Not given to much wine"—He was definitely never given to ANY wine!

"Not greedy of filthy lucre"—He has had no love for amassing money, but rather is rich in values that will neither "rust nor corrupt,"—rich in Christian character traits, in the love of many friends of all ages and races, in the love for family, in an enthusiastic love for all of life. He constantly seeks first the kingdom of God and his righteousness, trusting God to provide as he promised in Matthew 6:33. And he is generous, giving always to others before self.

"Grave"—He doesn't like the word, "grave," but this word, "grave" or "solemn" really doesn't fit him very well. Like his mother before him, he is brimming over with a sense of humor, and is usually joking or laughing. One of his favorite pastimes is teasing his three grandchildren. And he can smile even in the midst of pain. Some of his great enthusiasms include reading, fishing, traveling, and watching television. Our favorite family vacation spot was

A Father's Day Prayer

By General Douglas MacArthur

Build me a son, O Lord, who will be strong enough to know when he is weak, and brave enough to face himself when he is afraid; one who will be proud and unbending in defeat, and humble and gentle in victory.

Build me a son whose wishbone will not be where his backbone should be; a son who will know Thee—and that to know himself is the foundation stone of knowledge.

Lead him, I pray, not in the path of ease and comfort, but under the stress and spur of difficulties and challenge. Here let him learn to stand up in the storm; here let him learn compassion for those who fall.

Build me a son whose heart will be clear, whose goal will be high; a son who will master himself before he seeks to master other men; one who will learn to laugh, yet never forget how to weep; one who will reach into the future, yet never forget the past.

And after all these things are his, add, I pray, enough of a sense of humor, so that he may always remember the simplicity of true greatness, the open mind of true wisdom, the meekness of true strength.

Then, I, his father, will dare to whisper, "I have not lived in vain."
—The Young Soldier

Honor Your Father

The Biblical commandment to honor fathers and mothers, as Paul once remarked, is the only one with a promise: "Honor your father and mother, that it may be well with you and you may live long on the earth."

Prayer For A Son

Dear God—

Help me to be more fit to walk with my son. May I come home to him at night as clean as I left him in the morning.

May he have all the joys that Thou hast given me, multiplied by those that make life blessed.

Save 10%; Give 10%!

A father whose very name calls up visions of luxury. But his children—and later his grandchildren—were given an allowance of 25 cents a week, and required to save 10% and give 10% to charity! The name of this patriarch: John D. Rockefeller!

I do not ask that he escape sorrow, for then he may never truly know the joy and the depth, the love and the nearness of his Lord.

Help me to earn his trust.

Whether I am rich or poor—with all my limitations—may he remember his father as one who tried to live by the courage of his convictions as reflected in the life and teachings of Jesus.—Blaise Leval

Father's Day

Father's Day was first celebrated in 1910 in Spokane, Washington, at the urging of a Mrs. John Dodd. She wished to honor her father, William Smart, for the devotion with which he had reared six motherless children.

Head Of The Household

The Bible makes every day Father's Day. It gives every father special responsibilities every day, and assigns him a place to be respected by every member of the family—by his wife as well as by sons and daughters. "Listen to your father who fathered you" is good Biblical advice. "Listen" means "obey." By divine arrangement father has been made head of the household, a position not to be taken lightly by anyone, and certainly not by father himself.

A Serpent's Tooth

"How sharper than a serpent's tooth is an ungrateful child!"—Shakespeare, "King Lear"

Verse For The Week

Render therefore to all their dues: tribute to whom tribute is due; custom to whom custom; fear to whom fear; honor to whom honor.—Romans 13:7

Magee Elected National

President, N. O. Alumni

Dr. Magee is a native of Collins, Mississippi, a graduate of Mississippi College and of New Orleans Seminary, and received the Th.D. degree from the latter. He is immediate past president of Louisiana's New Orleans seminary Alumni. In Mississippi, he was formerly pastor of Puckett Church; First Church, Carthage; and Mt. Moriah, Lincoln County.

GHANA: An epidemic of meningitis and several snake bites have contributed to a heavy patient load at the Baptist Medical Center in this country's northern city of Nalerigu. The hospital staff treated over 10,500 patients during the first quarter of this year. Suguri Abdulai, the hospital's office clerk, was among seven persons baptized on Easter Sunday at the Nalerigu Baptist Church.

Graham Crusade Set For California

OAKLAND, Calif. (EP)—A committee for the Northern California Billy Graham Crusade announces that preparations are underway for the meeting to be held July 23 to Aug. 1, 1971 in the Oakland Coliseum.

"In many ways the crusade will be more challenging than the Southern California crusade," according to an announcement by the committee. "All the problems of society seem to have intensified in the last two years since the 1969 Anaheim crusade."

Retired Minister Builds Own Home; Always A Worker, He Has Never Quit

By J. Clark Hensley

Dr. Grover Cleveland Hodge retired from the active ministry in 1962, so they say, but not according to reports from Ocean Springs where, since his "retirement," he has designed and built their home (doing all the work except the foundation, plumbing, roofing and brick work); built kindergarten and church library furniture, signs, chalkboards and lecterns; designed and built many special teacher's desks (Teacher, be seated!); and built another boat! He has built eight boats since he went to Gulfport in 1931. One boat was stolen, two were lost in hurricanes, one was left when they moved to Houston, and the others were worn out by the family and a host of R.A.'s and G.A.'s. Fishing is good in the Gulf and Dr. and Mrs. Hodge are still among those who don't have to tell about the ones that got away. They still bring them in.

Dr. Hodge has had an illustrious, though unheralded, career as a minister—mostly in Mississippi. He served as Mississippi Baptists' first Stewardship and Budget Secretary from 1927-31, when the position was discontinued because of the depression. Immediately he was called to the First Baptist Church of Biloxi, without his knowledge. He had been there assisting the church in setting up a budget. He served Biloxi until 1955. From 1955-1962 he was pastor of the First Baptist Church of San Jacinto, Texas. Members of this congregation, upon his retirement and learning he was planning to build his home, gave him all sorts of building tools and equipment.

Dr. Hodge's story is a victorious repeat of how God moves through a dedicated life. He was born in Silver City, Mississippi, the youngest of 14 children, 10 of whom died of malaria. When Cleveland was eight, after his father had been killed by a runaway team, the mother and the four remaining children moved to a delta farm near Belzoni. Converted at nine years of age, he joined the Four-Mile Lake Baptist Church.

In 1906 the family moved to Long Beach to do vegetable farming and he became one of the charter members of the First Baptist Church of Long Beach. Here, as he finished his high school work, he, along with a Presbyterian girl, Alma Simmons, organized a youth fellowship and study group and took active interest in revivals held in the coastal area. About the time he finished high school, a retired minister from Gulfport, Dr. Grace, made a special trip to Long Beach to relate that in a vision or a dream God had told him to "tell Cleveland Hodge I appoint him as a minister of the Gospel." This unique visit sealed the impression he had already that God was indeed calling him to preach.

In the fall of 1918, with $5.00 in hand, Cleveland presented himself to Dr. Provine at Mississippi College as a prospective ministerial student. Upon inquiring about a job to pay his way, he was told that all jobs were taken and was advised to return home. He stayed—working at a task formerly assigned to a servant to help pay for his room and board. Although he sought to borrow money from friends and relatives, he came to examination time without his tuition being paid and faced a regulation requiring tuition payment prior to exams to receive credit. On the morning of the first examination he arose at 4:00 a.m. to study. When the Post Office opened, he went for the mail and found a letter with three ten dollar bills enclosed. His tuition was $29.50. He paused to thank God, and as he said "Amen," there on the sidewalk, the bell rang for the exam to begin.

After "practice preaching" for a few months in school houses near Clinton, he was called to the church at Four Mile Lake and was able to give up his dish-washing career (for pay) and finish his A. B. degree at Mississippi College in 1918. He was ordained by the Clinton Baptist Church in 1915, with Dr. Patterson, Head of the Bible Department, leading the examination.

In the meantime, the "Presbyterian girl" had finished M.S.C.W., so back in Long Beach she and Cleveland were married. With help from a brother-in-law they both enrolled in Southwestern Seminary. Here the Lord intervened with pastoral opportunities and other work (such as running a street car—which he learned to do on the job) until he finished his Master of Theology work. After resigning his churches, purposing to return to Mississippi, he was invited by the faculty to remain for doctoral studies. This news reached him on Thursday. He and his wife asked the Lord to open up new work by a week from Sunday if it was His will for them to stay. On Friday an invitation came to preach at Everman, Texas, twelve miles by interurban. Sunday night he was called as pastor. The Lord had beat Hodge's schedule by a week.

Following the completion of Master of Religious Education and all of his residence work for the doctorate, he served Fayette-Port Gibson, Mississippi, and then organized the Union Church congregation and built the church, over much opposition from other denominations in the area. Six weeks following the dedication of Union Church, he learned that without his knowledge he had been elected by the State Board as Stewardship and Budget Secretary. In this position he was instrumental in initiating the church budget concept to include the Cooperative Program in the First Church of Jackson; Second Church, Jackson (now Calvary); First, Gulfport; and First, Biloxi, to mention a few. He campaigned for church signs and markers across the state and wrote one-third page for the Baptist Record weekly for four years.

His twenty-four year ministry at First, Biloxi, involved paying off the church debt, erecting what was then the most modern educational building in the state, building a full church staff, writing many of the Sunday School lessons for three years of the depression, initiating a Monday night Training Course, inaugurating a training course for deacons and organizing an orientation for new church members—first patterned after Dr. Joe Odle's book The Church Member's Handbook. (Dr. Odle was then at Crystal Springs.) Then later Dr. and Mrs. Hodge divided the orientation group, with Mrs. Hodge's specialty being the Juniors.

When it was definite that Kessler Field was to be located in Biloxi, a Service Men's Center was established in the ground floor of the educational building, with Miss Elizabeth Pickering (now Mrs. E. D. Estes of Jackson) as director of the recreational program. Hundreds of young men attended weekly and many already Baptist helped, while many others were won to the Lord.

Among the results of Dr. Hodge's training in religious education and his astuteness in experience is the testimony of an educational director in Houston who, on "Hodge Day," stated, "I have learned more about educational work from this man than I ever learned in the seminary." Rev. Paul Aultman, his present pastor, states, "Dr. Hodge's counsel has been priceless to me. When I ask him for advice he never says, 'Now I would do this,' or 'I did this,' but rather he points out alternatives for me to consider and then supports me in my decisions."

Dr. Hodge served twelve years on the Mississippi Baptist Convention Board, six years on the Mississippi Baptist Hospital Board and six years on the Board of the Christian Life Commission, Southern Baptist Convention, representing Mississippi. He was elected Vice President of the Mississippi Baptist Convention in 1943. In 1942 Mississippi College honored him with the Doctor of Divinity degree. Actually four generations of Hodges, his oldest brother (remember, fourteen children), Dr. Hodge, their children and grandchildren, have attended Mississippi College.

Dr. and Mrs. Hodge were blessed with three children. The oldest, G. C., Jr., was lost in World War II in the "Island in the Sky." Bill is now with National Records Center, Asheville, N. C., and Alma (Mrs. John Rose) lives on Andros Island. The Hodges have six grandchildren, three now in college.

Mrs. Hodge has developed two hobbies—botany studies and Junior boys and girls. She has become a superb landscape artist in the former and a par excellence character developer in the latter, as hundreds of adults would now testify.

Through the years Dr. Hodge majored on expository Bible preaching and gave strong pastoral leadership to Bible study throughout the church. He states, "When you lose your Sunday School, you lose the future of your church." Dr. and Mrs. Hodge are both active in Bible teaching and other leadership work in the First Baptist Church of Ocean Springs.

Upon being asked about advice as to retirement, Dr. Hodge made these observations:

Begin to get ready for retirement the day you complete your seminary training by doing the following:

1. Watch your health. Take time to eat properly. Never get in a hurry. Develop a hobby. Spend one-third of your life in restful sleep (10 p.m. to 6 a.m.).
2. Plan sermons and prayer meeting topics at least six months ahead so as never to be pressured by unpreparedness. (He planned his work one year ahead.)
3. Put all the money you can into annuity and social security.
4. Learn to do things for yourself instead of paying someone else.
5. Make as many friends as possible with all kinds of people—all ages, all colors.
6. Do kind things for others at all times, but never expect anyone to do anything for you.

Grover Cleveland Hodge, who has retired but never quit, we salute you!

Winona Calls Pastor

Rev. David Pratt, pastor of First Church, Lexington since 1966, recently resigned to accept the pastorage of First Church, Winona.

Mrs. Pratt is the former Shirley Taylor of Como. The Pratts have three children: Dave 12, Cathy 8, Allan 4.

Mr. Pratt is presently serving on the Mississippi Baptist Convention Board. Mrs. Pratt is clerk

Indonesia Appoints Home Missionaries

Indonesian Baptists have appointed their first home missionaries. They are Pastor and Mrs. Sarbini A. B., who will be sent to Banjauwari, the "Gateway to Bali" in extreme eastern Java. Support for the new missionaries will come through the Cooperative Board of Indonesian Baptists, reof the Holmes County Baptist Association.

The new pastor assumes his duties in Winona on July 4.

ported William N. McElrath, Southern Baptist Missionary Press representative.

The Executive committee of the cooperative board, on which Indonesian outnumber American missionaries by nine to five, planned and conducted the appointment service. Hundreds of Baptists attended the 24-hour service in the chapel of the Baptist Theological Seminary of Indonesia, Semarang, Java.

The new missionaries are natives of the Solo area of central Java. Sarbini, a former junior high school teacher, also served as a member of his church's missions committee.

Marryin' Missionary

MONTEVIDEO, Uruguay — There's only one single fellow and not even one single girl enrolled in the Baptist Theological Institute here this year — and it's Mack Jones' fault. Although he bears no resemblance to Marryin' Sam of L'il Abner fame, Jones, who is professor of Old Testament in the institute, is fast becoming the man students seek out when they want to tie the knot. Before the beginning of the current school year in March, Jones performed two marriage ceremonies within the space of five weeks or so, completely depleting the institute's "stock" of marriageable coeds and leaving one lonely fellow in the men's dormitory.

The solo quality of Mrs. Jones' voice enhances her husband's popularity at a marriage performance. She usually gives an assist in the music department. Jones admits to being as nervous as the bride and groom during the ceremony. "The trouble with wedding," he explains, "is that if you make a mistake in the wording you have no time to correct it. It's not like a sermon or lecture when you can go back and explain what you meant to say."

The Joneses are Southern Baptist missionaries from Mississippi. He held pastorates there, in Alabama and in Oregon before going to the mission field. They served one term in Paraguay before transferring to Uruguay, arriving in Montevideo in July 1970. Both are graduates of New Orleans Baptist Theological Seminary.

The Prophet Micah Is Called "The Champion Of The Poor"

By Clifton J. Allen

Micah 2 and 3

Micah was a contemporary of Isaiah. We have no evidence, however, of a direct relationship between them. Isaiah's ministry was in Jerusalem. Micah was from the country, from Moresbeth near Gath. The time of his ministry was likely about 725-700 B. C. Hence, his ministry likely began before the downfall of Samaria in 721 B. C. and likely continued until near the time of Sennacherib's invasion in 701 B.C. Micah has been called the champion of the poor. He was heavily burdened for the economic injustice inflicted on poor and defenseless persons. A central theme of his prophecy is the divine summons to judgment. Even so, the light of God's mercy shone through the warnings of judgment with the assurance of God's willingness to forgive a repentant people.

The Lesson Explained
People Given Over To Sin
Verses 2:1-3, 8-9

Micah paints a realistic picture, and it is very dark. The people generally were completely given over to sin, so much so that they spent sleepless nights devising evil and wickedness and waiting impatiently for a new day to come when they could perform deeds of iniquity. They were constantly seeking to discover new ways of wicked practice, either in self-indulgence and dissipation or in wrongdoing toward other persons. Micah speaks particularly of their bent toward covetousness, and we may well conclude that greed for lands and houses, for profit and pleasure, made the people insensitive to the hardship and privation forced upon the poor by extortion and oppression. They were willing to rob a person of his inheritance, which was considered sacred and inviolate for a family. So given over to covetousness were some of the people that they were heartless and cruel to the extent of tearing the clothes from the backs of fellow Israelites and treating them as though God's face is hidden. Persons who should be women from their homes and robbed helpless children. Rulers in Love With Evil.

Verses 3:1-3
The rulers and leaders, above all, should have been concerned for the cause of justice. Instead, they were heartless and corrupt, hating what was good and loving what was evil. The measure of their wickedness is described by the prophet when he says that the rulers were as ravenous as wild beasts; they were acting like cannibals, tearing the skin from the people, eating their flesh, and crushing out their life.

Verses 3:1-3
The rulers and leaders, above all, should have been concerned for the cause of justice. Instead, they were heartless and corrupt, hating what was good and loving what was evil. The measure of their wickedness is described by the prophet when he says that the rulers were as ravenous as wild beasts; they were acting like cannibals, tearing the skin from the people, eating their flesh, and crushing out their life. Verse 4 emphasizes the fact that the fire of judgment will fall. God will act, but he will not respond to the cry of such wicked rulers and such great-souled individuals as those described by Micah. God's holiness requires that he act in judgment. Those who have spurned his warnings will suffer the consequences of their wickedness. Then it will seem to them as though God's face is hidden. Persons who should be the guardians of justice, but who instead become the arch perpetrators of injustice, will experience the terrible consequences of the severe but righteous punishment of God.

Champion Of The Poor
Micah was God's called spokesman to bring the indictment of God against the people who prospered through iniquity and to declare the compassionate concern of God for the people who were victims of the greed and cruelty of others. The prophecy of

Micah is preserved in the Scriptures as a message from God to his people down the ages. It is thus a declaration of the word of God to our present generation. This generation is likewise marked by economic extremes, some very rich and many very poor. Not all who are rich are guilty of injustice, for many persons with wealth are generous and compassionate. Many who are poor are responsible for their own poverty. But the fact remains that greed and covetousness produce injustice and that injustice produces heartless and agonizing poverty. Micah's message should challenge Christians to work and pray

Jeremiah Reveals An Optimistic Faith

Jeremiah 32

By Bill Duncan

When is the best time to purchase property and make plans for the future? Is it when the city is encamped around your city and you are in prison? Jeremiah was a man who had a great faith in God, and his action bears out his belief in what God was going to do. Jeremiah had been put in prison because the king Zedekiah had protested against the gloomy predictions of the prophet. The conditions brought a gloomy outlook to life. The great army of the Chaldeans was encamped, besieging the holy city. The large portion of Jeremiah 32 and 33 contains the prophet's answer to the protest of the king. Jeremiah did not withdraw any of the peril that awaited Judah but he did tell a prophecy of ultimate restoration and return for the people.

To show his faith he tells of the purchase of land. A piece of property was available to him because of family rights. When he purchased the land and signed the deed and secured it for the future, he said a prayer: "To God as Creator, nothing is too hard." His power had been seen in the history of his people and in the judgment of the hour for the presence of the Chaldeans outside Jerusalem, for they were a demonstration of the power and the persistence of His government.

Why did God want the prophet to buy the property? It was an act of faith. The future was not such as to encourage prosperity. But "faith" is the substance of things hoped for, the evidence of things not seen" (Heb. 11:1). Faith is never fanatical. The picture of faith is according to the light of God's work. When this is accomplished, faith is reasonable, and accurate.

To the average man in our church this act of buying land is not reasonable, but God instructed the prophet to do so. For years the prophet had been in fellowship with God. Jeremiah had been absolutely loyal; therefore the prophet was sensitive to the will and voice of God. God told him that his uncle would come and ask him to buy the field. Jeremiah "knew the impression was definite when circumstances ratified the impression." To the man who will be guided into acts of faith, he will need to wait for the verifying circumstances that will make certain the spiritual impressions.

Faith is never fanatical. Look at the care that Jeremiah took in the purchase of the field. He made sure the legal work was carried out. The deed is a sign of care. Too often we are tempted to do things in a foolhardy way. But to Jeremiah faith is legal and faith is accurate.

The optimistic faith is reasonable. It is not the cleverness of politicians who forecast the issue not by the clear mechanical vision of how God was going to return the people to their home land, but the fact that God said it would happen caused him to buy the land. Faith is never irrational. It is always based upon reason. The moment you speak of faith you admit doubt. It is the man who believes nothing, who had no doubt and no difficulty.

Why did it appear then that he was optimistic? He said nothing about his doubt. God commands, and I do not see how this is going to be but I obey. That is faith taking the risk, making the venture, daring everything upon the word of God. But faith according to G. Campbell Morgan will always ask its questions to God in a secret place.

The reply that God gave him was something like this. You are perfectly right in expressing your doubts. "Then God admitted to him into the deep and profound secret of the fact that presently through all this turmoil and strife, there would grow out a branch out of the root, there would come one who would be king and priest exercising authority and mediating so that man would be able to enter into the restoration of the meaning of the divine government."

The trouble we face so often is that we proclaim our doubts to our friends, and they cannot help. It is to God that we should speak. By honest inquiry we create the opportunity for confirmatory revelation. This must always be personal.

The purchase of the property is the cooperation with God that is essential to a healthy faith. Faith in God is so real that every opportunity is in relation to God.

Life appears to be hopeless without faith. "God never has enough men and women who face life with strength and stability because of unswerving inner faith that breeds a relentless optimism." The church today needs some people who are optimistic about its future. The youth need some people to have faith in them that they will invest their lives in working with them. Our Christian life is existing when faith is sure.

13 Choctaw Boys At Garaywa Make Professions Of Faith

For three years a Bible teacher, Dr. John F. Carter, and the Clarke College BSU director, J. B. Costlow, have driven to the Indian Center in Philadelphia and taught Bible and Christian leadership to a fine group of Choctaws.

Last year the Clarke Religious Education Department, directed by Dr. C. H. Melton, sponsored a youth program each Wednesday night. Student Ann Harrell, Sidon, and student Ellen Myers, Morton, led in the planning and promotion. Their programs included Bible study, music and social activities.

Last week the definite "pay off" was noted. It happened like this: The camp for Choctaw teenage boys was held at Camp Garaywa from Friday, June 4 to Monday, June 7. Forty-four boys, ages 8-15, attended. J. B. Costlow, served as camp pastor. Six or more other outstanding leaders with Director Dolton Haggan worked with the youth.

Then came the climax — high and holy. When Mr. Costlow brought the closing sermon and gave an invitation there were 13 professions of faith and eight rededications!!

The Hong Kong Baptist Association will send three missionaries to work with Chinese persons in Malaysia, Singapore, and South Vietnam. Pastor Loh Yan-kwong will serve in the Malaysia-Singapore Baptist Convention. Several million Chinese live in Malaysia and Singapore. Mr. and Mrs. James Hu will leave for service in Saigon after he is graduated from a theological seminary. As missionaries of the Hong Kong association, they will work in Cholon, the Chinese section of Saigon, in the Chinese Baptist church.

Off The Record

New Man

A customer drove up to a filling station and noticed a large sign on the door with the announcement, "UNDER NEW MANAGEMENT."

"What's the idea?" he asked the attendant, seeing the owner inside. "Isn't that Jerry in there?"

"Oh, sure," was the answer, "He got married yesterday."

Young Logic

Twilight deepened as two little sisters played in the park. Suddenly one of them looked up and said, "I wonder if it's four o'clock yet."

"It couldn't be four," said the other, "because Momma said we were to be home by four, and we aren't."

One reason why the zoo is so popular with parents is that no matter how the kids may scream for it, you can't take it home with you.

DELAYED REACTION!

A short little fellow discussed his tennis game with a friend. "When my opponent hits the ball to me, my brain immediately barks out a command to my body: 'Race up to the net' — it says, 'Slam a blistering drive to the far corner; jump back into position to return the next volley.'"

"Then?" asked his friend. "Then," sighed the rotund one, "my body says, 'Who — me?'"

SBC Executives, Homes For Aging, To Meet In June

Two established leaders in the field of aging are scheduled to speak to the Baptist group during the meeting at the Holiday Inn (Central), Washington, D. C.

Archie Brickley, superintendent of the Bethesda Baptist Home in Darlington, South Carolina, is president of the Association. W. L. Howse III, of the Christian Life Commission, SBC, serves in a staff capacity for the organization.

Devotional

"God's Search For A Man"

By Dr. Ira D. Eavenson, pastor emeritus, First, Marks

Ezekiel 22:30—"And I sought for a man among them that should make up the hedge, and stand in the gap before Me for the land, that I should not destroy it: but I found none."

How tragic this was in the life of the nation of Israel is revealed on the pages of history! What about our own times and about America? God brought our nation into being that here His Word might have its best opportunity to produce moral character and be His lighthouse of truth for the world. Dark days of departure from the truth are upon us. The tides of unbelief, immorality, and sin of every kind are threatening our foundations. God is searching for men to "stand in the gap" and through them sound forth the call to moral living and build a society in which He is honored. They are to be spokesmen for God, His representatives with varied assignments, calling on men to "know the way, of the Lord and walk therein."

The Bible tells us of ordinary men from varied walks of life, commissioned for special service, doing great exploits for God. They often faced impossible situations, viewed from the human side, but, as God worked through them, miracles took place. Some thundered their messages from the mountainsides, others from temple courts, in king's palaces, in private homes and in desert places. High standards of spiritual worship were lifted up and the application of God's laws to daily living was emphasized.

As we read Bible history we marvel that God used men for this service when angels were at His command. Some of the most notable used by Him in working out His plans were far from perfect and the flaws in their characters marred the completeness of their witness. But God made man a free moral agent and His purpose is to produce moral character. He knew that the finest results would be produced by the proclamation of His truth by "one of their brethren."

Jesus told the story of the rich man in hell begging Abraham to send Lazarus, who had also died, back to warn his brothers, saying that they would believe if one went back to them from the dead. But Jesus said, "They have Moses and the prophets." So in our day, we have the successors to Isaiah, Amos, Hosea, Micah and others commissioned to warn that men flee the wrath to come and to know the way of the Lord and walk therein.

This is a great age in which to live. Science has laid at our feet its inventions, bringing comforts and luxuries such as no other generation has enjoyed, and has provided the means by which even the most remote areas of the world may be challenged by the Word of the Lord. But never has there been a time when sin has been more devastating. The stench of moral decay rises to high heaven. The drunken orgies, the political corruption and the lethargy of those who subscribe to higher things rival the evils that prevailed in Babylon and Rome before God's wrath was visited upon them.

God is still saying, "Whom shall I send and who will go for us?" Death silenced the voice of Isaiah and Amos, but not until they had delivered His message, and God has preserved for us what He said through them, so that we may capture the thundering call to righteousness and His deep yearning for the return to Him of His wayward children.

God is still looking for men. Someone rather facetiously said, "God looked for Adam and found him under a bush making an apron out of fig leaves. He found Noah stretched out in his tent drunk. He found David on a roof-top—a peeping-tom, planning adultery. He found Elijah, asleep under a juniper tree, after his flight from an angered Jezebel." But the important thing for us to note is that God found them, redeemed them, and gave them a commission.

It is interesting to see that God calls busy men to deliver His message. Moses was watching his father-in-law's sheep in the desert. Elisha was plowing his field. Isaiah was worshipping in the temple. Peter, James, and John were fishing which was their regular occupation. Matthew was in his office collecting taxes. Deborah was a busy-housewife and Lydia was a merchant selling imported materials. Thus we can well see that God is no respecter of persons, nor is there any particular spot where His summons is to be heard. Materialism, worldliness, sex, moral corruption, and political anarchy hold the world in their grasp. Apathy, carelessness, indifference, and weakness threaten the church with defeat. But our situation is not hopeless, for the Mighty God, our loving Father, is still on His throne.

What God Can Do

The face of Gikita, Aca Indian who took part in the slaying of five Christian missionaries in Ecuador in the mid-fifties, now radiates the peace of God. He will appear with missionary Rachel Saint, who led him to Christ, on the June 20 "Faith in Action" radio program, a production of the Southern Baptist Radio and Television Commission.

Revival Dates

Forest Church: June 20-25; services at 7:30 a.m. and 7:30 p.m.; Rev. Carl Duck, pictured, pastor, Lakeside Church, Dallas, Tex., evangelist (Duck is a former pastor of First Church in Morton and in Batesville); James B. McElroy, minister of music, Forest music director; Rev. Frank W. Gunn, pastor.

Horton, pastor; services at 7:30 p.m.; Sunday services: Sunday School at 10, preaching at 11; afternoon service at 1:30, lunch served in Fellowship Hall; no morning services during week.

First Church, Carriere Sponsors TV Program

Due to a very successful radio program entitled "To Learn The Bible," the pastor Rev. Wm. Gary Smith, (pictured) announces that First Baptist Church of Carriere is sponsoring a television program for three Sundays (June 20 - July 4) by the same title. The TV program will be over WLOX Television Station (Channel 13), in Biloxi every Sunday morning at 7:30 a.m. A question will be asked about the Bible each Sunday and the first person getting the correct answer will be invited to appear on the TV program the following Sunday to receive as a gift a new Bible.

Another part of the program will deal with memory work of passages of Scripture. When the program ends on July 4 a Bible and a one-hundred-dollar-bill or a Bible and a free trip to Ridgecrest Baptist Assembly in North Carolina with the young people of First Church, Carriere, will be given to the one who is able to quote the most of the Sermon on the Mount (Matthew Chapters 5-7). In the event more than one person is able to quote all of the Sermon on the Mount other passages will be given to determine the winner.

In addition to going to Ridgecrest, N.C., tentative plans call for Washington, D. C.; Niagara Falls, New York; and Canada.

Those interested in the program and desiring more information are invited to write the pastor, Rev. Wm. Gary Smith, P. O. Box 56, Carriere, Mississippi 39426.

Born in Millport, Alabama, son of Lee W. and Alice Robertson Bobo, Bobo moved with his family to Choctaw County in early life.

He received a BA degree from Mississippi College and holds a Master's Degree in Education from Duke University.

An active member of Parkway Church, Bobo serves as a deacon, chairman of the Day Care Kindergarten School, and teaches an adult class for men. He has served Mississippi College as president of the Booster Club and Board of Directors of the Alumni Association.

Bobo is married to the former Doris Thompson, of Houlika and they are the parents of twin sons, who are physicians, and a daughter.

Since July 1958, Bobo has directed the ever-expanding program of services to crippled children in Mississippi—a program initially orthopedic and plastic in scope, but now embracing many problems in the fields of neurology, cardiology, seizure control, speech and hearing. With a register of 20,000 cases, the program served nearly 6000 children last year.

For 14 years prior to coming to Crippled Children's Service, Bobo was connected with Vocational Rehabilitation, a Division of the State Board of Education, serving as counselor in Greenwood.

An earlier segment of Bobo's career was devoted to public school teaching and administration.
